Raiders Get Two Out Of Three

Last week Appomattox had three baseball games and came up with two wins and one loss.

The Raiders were shut out by Nelson as they lost 2-0. Mitch Eggleston was the losing pitcher. The Raiders had only 4 hits.

The next game was a different story as the Raiders played heads-up-ball to overcome the Rustburg Devils 9-8. After Rustburg had knocked all of Appomattox's pitchers off the mound, including five homeruns, Mike Quinn was pulled from outfield to pitch, and was credited with the win. Warren Coleman hit a 3-run homer in the 1st inning for the Raiders, and Andy Wingfield had his first homerun of the season in the sixth inning.

MRS. KNIGHT'S 4-H CLASS

In the May 4-H meeting in the 6th grade class of Pamplin we had our 9th meeting of the year. We sang songs and afterwards we had the minutes of the last meeting. We then heard new business and old business. We also got wildlife feed patch seed for those who ordered it. We also got certificates that came from the demonstration contest. We saw a slide reel on Dairy Month Posters and dog show pictures. We heard a little bit about the two topics. The president then adjourned the last meeting of this year.

New population projections have just been released. It is projected that Appomattox County will have a population in 1980 - 10,600; 1985 - 11,000; 1990 - 11,400; 1995 - 11,800; 2000 - 12,300.

This may be a very conservative estimate.

Last week you were asked to go back in time to the official opening of our County Library in 1940. You were reminded that it was presented to us by a supposedly anonymous donor, Lunenberg, Mecklenberg, Halifax, Pittsylvania and Charlotte Counties were recipients of the same type of building. Charlotte being the oldest and Appomattox the youngest.

Some of this information is included in the first edition of the "County Library Log" edited at our own library. Several of these are still on display.

In the 1940's and 1950's the County Library was reading headquarters for the entire county. Besides taking books each week to all the Elementary Schools in the area, a book loan station was established in the home of a Home Demonstration member in each community. The librarian attended each club meeting and gave reviews of books and explained the plan of library service. Mrs. B. G. Anderson, formerly Miss Ella Smith and County HD Agent at that time, visited the library sometimes daily to choose books to take to her club meetings. Although some husbands complained of neglect, saying "My wife keeps her nose in a book all the time," most people in the rural area were enthusiastic about this service to their community. The following library goals were established: 1. Every member read five books during the year. 2. Each club contribute one dollar to the book fund of the library. 3. A review of one book to be given at the monthly meeting. 4. An individual reading record of the members of each club to be kept by the chairman.

In 1941 the women made "Better Reading for 1941" their federation goal and increased the minimum reading goal from five to twelve books a year.

In April 1941, Mrs. C. G. O'Brien, president of Appomattox Garden Club, and Miss Violet Ramsey, County Librarian, issued invitations to a reception celebrating the first anniversary of the library. The Garden Club and the Library staff were sponsors of the event. Pictures taken at this reception and others throughout the years are still in the scrapbook of the library.

Farm Exports To Be Noted In World Trade Observance

U. S. farm exports contribute significantly to the national economy. They were valued at a record $13.1 billion for the first seven months of 1974-75, and are forecast at $22 billion for fiscal year ending June 30, James R. Ford, Jr., Chairman, Appomattox County ASC Committee said.

Mr. Ford said that because farm exports are meaningful to everyone, and a significant part of world trade, the U. S. Department of Agriculture will participate in observing World Trade Week, May 18-24.

U. S. agricultural export shipments were valued in the range of $3 to $4 billion yearly in the mid-1950's before a market development program was started under direction of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS). Such deliveries are expected to bring $22 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30.

"Because this nation is a major agricultural exporter," Ford said, "the results have extensive benefits to farmers, the employment situation, in preparing for surging population growth, food assistance for development nation, and in negotiations with other nations."

Plum Branch Woman's Club

The Plum Branch Woman's Club installed new officers at the home of Mrs. Dan Holloway on May 1, 1975. Mrs. Dewey Booth, Concord Senior Citizens Coordinator was the installating officer. Mrs. John Derzuweit, past president, presented the gavel and president pin to the new club president, Mrs. Dan Holloway.

A brief business meeting preceeded the installation. The club will have a Stuff 'n Such Sale on June 21. Mrs. Holloway announced a board meeting will be held in May. The Concord Senior Citizens will hold an Open House at the Senior Citizens' Center on Route 24 on May 28 from 1:00 p.m. - 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. Dan Holloway, Mrs. H. A. Parke and Mrs. Harmon Mann will serve a hot luncheon to the Concord Sr. Citizens on May 7th.

Especially interesting are the ones which show the librarian arriving at the schools and the eager children pouring out to meet her. This service to the schools continued until the 1960's when it was deemed advisable to bring the children, by bus, to the library.

When reminiscing about the "good old days" we see the fine cooperation between the library and the various clubs in the county. Also it seems the people were more enthusiastic about reading then but of course television has changed all that.

This is progress? From a Senior Citizen's viewpoint an emphatic "No".

A copy of Stuart Farrar's book on the 1850 census has been presented to the County Library. More next week.

Forum: Hypertension and Ecology

The 7th Greater Lynchburg Regional Health Forum was held Tues., May 6, at the Virginia Baptist Hospital in Lynchburg. The Forum was co-sponsored by the State Women's Committee of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation and the Virginia Council on Health and Medical Care, cooperating with the Virginia Heart Association. Each of these Forum's has as its major concern a health related topic and a foods subject.

Dr. Jack W. Hall of Danville, an internist, spoke on "Understanding Hypertension". Dr. Robert H. Giles of the College of Agriculture and Life Science at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University demonstrated extensively "The Ecology of the World Food Crisis".

Dr. Hall related the major statistics of hypertension in the U.S., and explained what hypertension is. Hypertension is simply abnormally high tension and high blood pressure can signal the presence of this disease but it does not necessarily mean a person is hypertensive. In the U.S. ten to twenty percent of adults are hypertensive but this disease can affect the young, middle aged or old. Sixty percent of white adults and thirty percent of black adults are stricken with hypertension. But in black adults hypertension develops earlier in life, it is more severe and more frequently causes death. Why this occurs research has not been able to discover.

Fewer than fifty percent of the people who have hypertension know it. Of the people who are afflicted with this disease, 75 percent are not treated adequately. This is mainly because of the lack of the symptons until late in the course of the disease. High blood pressure affects the brain, kidneys, arteries and heart. Dr. Hall said there are excellent medicines to treat this disease so there is no reason not to be treated effectively. But the best weapon to fight this disease is to have your blood pressure checked annually.

"The Ecology of the World Food Crisis" was a pertinent and overwhelming topic to discuss. Dr. Giles presented many obvious facts to support the idea that the present world food problems are not temporary, as many would believe.

Dr. Giles logical explanation, based on the relationships between plants, animals and man, presented the most troublesome portions of our "world food system". Some of the "diseased" areas considered were: the energy shortage as relates to the present high energy consumption methods of agriculture, the increasing water shortage problems, the loss to urbanization of 1 million acres per year of good agricultural land because of poor planning, and lastly the world population growth problem.

Dr. Giles closed his presentation with some major recommendations. First and foremost is population control especially within the developing nations of the world. Next would be the control of resources per person worldwide so that all human beings would have an equal opportunity to a good "quality of life".

This Forum as well as the previous ones was an interesting and up to date presentation of local and worldwide events in health and food.

More Forums will be presented for your interest in the future.
